Business Buniyad

ব্যবসা বুনিয়াদ

A Bengali-first ledger for shopkeepers.

Sixteen million small businesses keep their books on paper, because every accounting tool asks them to think in English. This one does not. Bengali is the default locale — English is the opt-in.

> THE DESIGN MOVE
>
> The amount is written ৳ ১২৫০ — Bengali numerals, the taka mark, never the Western digit. And the labels are the shop's own words, not a textbook's: ধার, not ঋণ. টাকা পেলাম, not "Payment Received."

WHY THIS IS THE PRODUCT

The catalog is one object — ScenarioCatalog.kt. Groups, labels and directions are declared once and derived everywhere. When the balance and the statement disagreed about a salary advance, the fix was to move the sign onto the enum itself, where the whole app reads it from.

SIXTEEN TYPES, FIFTEEN DOORS

The enum carries 16 transaction types. Fifteen are surfaced to the shopkeeper through the six doors; the sixteenth exists in the domain and awaits its catalog entry. Same language, one missing door — the kind of gap only an audit finds.

THE SIX DOORS IN ENGLISH

HOW AN ENTRY BECOMES A POSITION

Four layers, no magic.

PURE JVM AT THE RISK POINT

01 · INPUT

রহিমকে পাঁচ হাজার টাকা বাকিতে দিলাম

A spoken Bengali sentence. The recogniser is a separate adapter that feeds the parser.

UTTERANCE

02 · PARSE

Deterministic parser

Rules only — no model, no network, no LLM. Pure Kotlin, provable on the JVM.

NATURALLANGUAGEENTRYPARSER

03 · ENGINE

DefaultBusiness Engine

Balances recomputed from the ledger. The party sign lives on the enum itself.

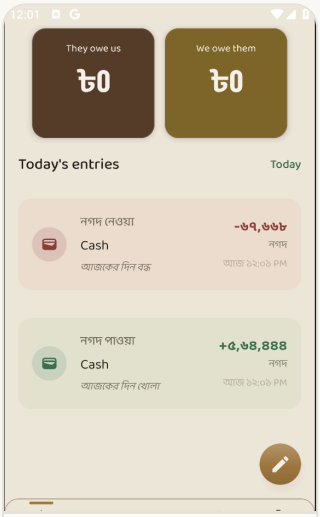

ACTION ROUTER · SNAPSHOT

04 · STORE

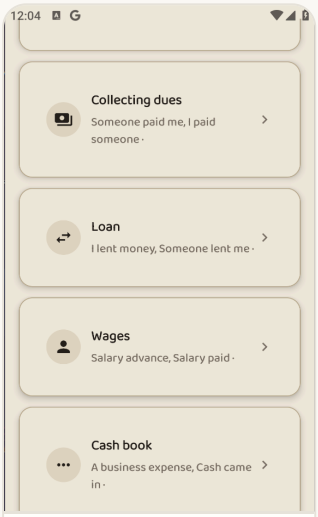

Room + SQLCipher

Encrypted at rest, encrypted backup export, daily auto-backup, recover-deleted path.
